If you need assistance troubleshooting the process of getting ahold of your images, I am happy to help.

Thank you for your support

My MS diagnosis left me determined to choose art as my pathway forward, and holding space for your journey is an honor I take very seriously.

Confronting medical imagery and transforming it into a moment that you celebrate can be cathartic and profound. For those that choose to share their story through the Colors of MS project; I thank you for your bravery in putting your story to words. I am confident your story will inspire many others, as I take inspiration from each and every person I meet through this project. From the bottom of my heart – thank you.
